JUDGE SMITH TELLS ANTI-SALOONISTS WORKINGS OF WATER WAGON

(By Associated Press.)
Atlantic City, N. J., July 8.—Dan Morgan Smith, judge advocate of the state of Illinois, who addressed the national convention of the Anti-Saloon League today summed up in epigrammatic form what he called "The Price of a Drink."

He said:
"If the results of drinking were purely personal than the complaint of the 'wets' that the anti-liquor forces are trying to interfere with the personal liberty of drinkers, might carry with it some force, but drink is sold on the installment plan, first payment is made when you get the drink, the others when the drink gets you!"

"The greater part of the payments are made by those who do not drink. The price of a drink ranges from a dime to damnation—the drinker pays the dime and humanity pays the damnation."

"Enforcement of local or state prohibition depends upon the inclination, energy and honesty of local authorities, but you can make prohibition prohibit—any one of you—by a persistent prosecution of those officials who fail to prosecute the violators of the dry law."

"If a judge is too wet to do his duty, make it so hom for him he will dry out."

"It often does more good, in the enforcement of liquor laws, to kick one crooked chief of police out of the police station than to bring many drunks into the police station."

Referring to employers who have taken a stand against the drinking employee, he said:

"There is room on the water wagon for the employer as well as for the employee."

LET MULE SELECT THE SPOT TO DRILL

Dallas, Texas, July 8.—Some persons told Colonel E. H. R. Green that any old jackass could locate oil 'so when the syndicate which he represented was ready to sink a well, he selected a mule as master of ceremonies.

The mule was driven on a dead run into the field, and allowed its own time in coming to a stop. Where the mule started to graze would be the location of the well. Colonel Green says he will pension the mule if they strike oil.

official reports as utterly as if he had forsaken his command and had left the army.

There can be only two theories. By some it is thought that the field marshal, who has a national reputation more popular by far than the kaiser, is now preparing to lead the Germans in Russia by way of the Baltic provinces, and perhaps command the advance upon Petrograd by way of the Gulf of Riga.

The other theory is due to reports received more than a month ago that the kaiser, as were his favored officers, inclined to be jealous of the popularity of the grim warrior. They were willing to divide the eastern operations among the other generals if they could, and hence since the Carpathian drive began, the names always mentioned have been Von Mackensen, who has been made a field marshal, Von Linsingen, who has received the order Pour Le Merite, and Von Woytarsch and the Austrian commanders. There has been activity in Courland and north of the Niemen, but Von Hindenberg has not been named.

BARDE COMPILES
AGGIE BOARD REPORT

Stillwater, Okla., July 8.—Frederick S. Barde, of Guthrie, well known newspaperman compiled the biennial report of the Oklahoma state board of agriculture which is just off of the press; 3,000 copies were printed but owing to the reputation that Mr. Barde made in compiling the report of the state game and fish warden and the instantaneous demand for copies of the report, President Frank M. Gault ordered an extra 2,000 printed.

This report is a wide departure from the usual official reports in that it was written to be read. It is devoid of tables of statistics, yet it is full of information told in a gripping, convincing manner that the tired farmer or his family will remain up past their bedtime to finish reading it. With its illustrations of the agricultural advancement and the simple language in which it is couched it might more properly be called, "The Story of Oklahoma."

Every phase of agricultural development is touched upon. The vital connection between the State Agricultural & Mechanical college and remunerative farms and happy homes in Oklahoma is emphasized.

On account of the short time Mr. Barde had to prepare the report and the inability to get illustrations for all the subject matter he does not feel that it is to be compared with his previous efforts in writing, "Out Door Oklahoma," however, it is a masterpiece compared with the usual dry as dust reports that the farmer usually expects from a state board of agriculture.
